Supt. Chency says that two-thirds of the preferred stock of the Fidelity company is held by the Robin banks and the Carnegie Trust Company, which are being liquidated by the department, and that the stock issue is to be held subject by a voting trust, of which two trustees are to be named by the Superintendent of Banks and two by the minority stockholders. The trust is to continue for five Banks and two by the minority stock-holders. The trust is to continue for five years, in which time all the bonds are to be paid off. CENTRAL LEATHER MEETING

COURT SETS ASIDE INJUNC-TION TO PREVENT IT.

Will Be Held in Jersey City To-day-No Definite Ruling on the Question of Voting Borrowed Stock, but Bache & Co. Will Fight Any Such Attempt.

The stockholders of the Central Leather Company may hold their annual meeting at any time whatsoever. That was the substance of a decision handed down by Vice-Chancellor Howell at Newark yesterday in the J. S. Bache & Co. injunction The Vice-Chancellor found no evidence of fraud or mismanagement on the part of officers of the Central Leather Company and removed the injunction given a week ago to restrain the stockholders from holding an annual meeting. Whether or not the company can vote the proxies said by Bache & Co. to represent borrowed stock is not clear from yesterday's decision. Bache & Co. based their request for an injunction chiefly upon the contention that the leather company's management had got the voting power of 50,000 shares of stock by borrowing that stock for a consideration the day before the books were closed and returning it the following day. The Central Leather Company insisted that if Bache & Co. had also borrowed stock for the election their proxies would be as void as those held by the leather corporation's officers. In his decision the Vice-Chancellor said:

separation of the voting power of corthe chance of a reduction but an actual instructions given either openly or tacitly to him by the real owner of The agency is of such a character that by the execution of a subsequent proxy which would cancel the former one, the whole situation being entirely under the control of the stockholder himself. The situation as to the stock complained of in this case is very different. Here the stockholder has right or given it away to persons who may vote it wholly in opposition to his wishes, and thus the power to appoint a proxy degenerates from the scheme for the best method of conducting the business of the company into a mere device for maintaining stockholders' meeting has a right to have the other real stockholders present in person or by proxy for the purpose of considering is not reached when the contest is one which is waged merely for control without regard the best interests of the corporation.
